

Buttermilk Falls

2021

This site features an impressive 45 ft waterfall and scenic woodland. The 48-acre natural area was donated to Indiana County Parks in 1995 by the Keystone-Conemaugh Group. This natural area has been set aside to protect both typical and unique plant and animal groups and to protect outstanding examples of natural beauty. The McFeely Trail highlighted here is a nice woodland walk. An alternate walk is the path to the falls, which features the bridge and a behind-the-falls view.

It's a beautiful day
in this neighborhood!

The Eclipse Bridge

Erected at the time of the solar eclipse of August 21, 2017.

brought to you by

For more information, email bhaug@upstreetarchitects.com or visit us on Facebook at Indiana County Walking Decathlon or online at ICOPD.org

Between 1931 and 1956 the property was owned by Fred McFeely, grandfather of Fred Rogers of children's television fame. McFeely, a wealthy industrialist from Latrobe, PA utilized the property as a retreat. His estate featured a cottage, horse stables, a three car garage, outbuildings and a swimming area in the creek above the falls. Mr. Rogers often visited the site as a child. Stone foundations and retaining walls from the estate are still visible.

Revised 8/12/08

— McFeely Trail
 — Access Path to Falls